Winners of Heights Study Scholarships Succeed in College

On January 26 in Park Avenue Congregational Church, the Annual ing soprano role—that of Mabel. Scholarship Bridge and food sale will be given by the Arlington Heights Study Club for the purpose of raising its $100 Scholarship to be given to a High School Senior chosen by the faculty.

The club admits the amount of the Scholarship will not carry the student very far on his college career, but feels he has been given a strong incentive to try and carry on with the aid of further Scholarships what his chosen college may have to offer.

Without exception, all past winners of these Scholarships have graduated from college with honors and the club is most proud of

Among the winners is Leonard Hall, a student on Dean's List at Northeastern, and Warren Ganong of the same college, who also was always an Honor Student and very prominent in college activities.

Fred Travers graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology with honors.

John Driscoll of East Arlington studied for Law at Boston University. Mary Astor is studying at the Cambridge School of Liberal Arts, and Miss Hilda Frost, a past winner, teaches Art in Junior High

Information regarding this Bridge may be obtained by calling Arlington 4473 or Arlington 6188-M. The co-chairmen for this event are Mrs. George Parker and Mrs. Frederick Orchard.

PRESIDENT'S BALL

(Continued from Page 1) was held a year ago. Gross proceeds of $585.79 were realized. Of the net amount 30% was sent to Warm Springs Fund, 70% being retained by the local committee and is being expended for local aid. The procedure is made as simple as possible and red tape, delay, and ostentation are not tolerated. We become informed of cases where aid is required through many sources including the local doctors, the Visiting Nurses Association, school teachers, as well as parents of afflicted children. Every case is referred to a sub-committee of Arlington doctors for a report as to the need of treatment, or necessary mechanical appliances such as braces or crutches, and the financial status of the family is investigated. We face the delicate situation repeatedly wherein some poor child needs treatment but whose parent's are reluctant to ask for what they consider charity. We shall endeavor to carry on our work with the deepest consideration of those to whom help is given, insofar as our funds will permit. We now maintain a weekly clinic which treats Arlington patients. Each patient is examined by a most expert specialist and individual treatment is prescribed. The cost of that weekly treatment to the eleven children now receiving it is over $250 per year. Steel braces, and special mechanical supports are needed by those whose condition is so improved that with proper continuing aid they may again be restored to partial health and the opportunity of assisting in their own support.

"No strong and healthful person can possibly realize the helplessness of those stricken with infantile paralysis. Beauty, vitality of youth, and joyous living are crushed under the heel of disease in a few short hours. Only long extended and regular treatments under the most competent hands will bring into their lives some encouragement, some peace of mind, some will to strive for even partial restoration to health.

"Surely above all else in this world we desire happiness, and what greater happiness can we attain than the happiness gained by making others happy. Don't wait for someone to ask you to buy a ticket, or to make a small dona-

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Truth" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, January 24.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations" (Psalms 100:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hast thou the Creator of the ends of the earth, Sunday School: Intermediate fainteth not, neither is weary? might he increaseth strength"

The Lesson-Sermon also includes Prayer Meeting, Thursday at 8 the following passage from the and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The supposed laws which result in weariness and disease are not His laws, for the legitimate and only possible action of Truth is the production of harmony. Laws of nature are laws of Spirit; but mortals commonly recognize as law that which hides the power of Spirit. . . . Obedience to Truth gives man power and strength" (p.

> When Judge Parmenter retired from the bench in 1930, the Advocate published the following editorial in the issue of September 12 of that vear:--

"One of Arlington's line of distinguished judges has retired from the Boston Municipal Court after 28 years of service. Judge James Parker Parmenter has relinquished the bench in his seventieth year, not because of any physical incapacity, but because he wished toretire before it was too late to find another interest. "Regret over his resignation has come from many sources. An editorial in the Boston Herald this week said, 'We say good-bye to him as senior associate justice on the municipal court with great regret.' The Herald probably expresses the sentiment of all those who knew Judge Parmenter professionally.

"The Judge intends to take it very easy for a while, just spending his time about his home on Russell street. No plans have been formulated at all for the future.

"To further quote the Herald editorial: 'It seems to have been his definite purpose to keep out of the public eye. He was not an advertising judge. But his work 1 did well. He early earned the confidence of the community and kept it throughout his career.'

"As the above would indicate, Judge Parmenter is not an easy man to interview. He was most courteous to the Advocate reporter, and he answered every question without any coy hedging. But it was impossible to start him talking of himself. When asked about his boyhood, the Judge said that Professor Pierce had told all about and Phinney on the unusual subject, Arlington in the old days in his speech before the Chamber of Commerce. Obviously, the judge is a very modest man. "Judge Parmenter was born in 1859 in the house which still stands on the corner of Academy street and Massachusetts avenue. When he was ten years old his father built the homestead on Russell street, where the Judge has lived ever since. The house is today one of the attractive spots in Arling-

"The senior Parmenter was appointed to the Municipal court in 1871 and was made Chief Justice in 1883. He finally resigned from the court as his son, the present Judge Parmenter, stepped in in "At Harvard Judge Parmenter had a brilliant scholastic career. He was awarded the Phi Beta Kappa key in college and earned Cum Laude in the law school. He graduated from the college in 1881 and began to study law in 1885.

"While he is naturally of a retiring nature, Judge Parmenter has been active in public life. In Arlington he served on the School Committee from 1886 until 1895. The 'New High School,' now Junior High Center, on Academy street. was built while he was chairman of the committee.

"He served as a library trustee for thirty-nine years. He was first elected while he was still in law school-1883. He served at one time with Dr. Hodgdon and Trowbridge, the author.

"He was one of the original members of the Planning Board and served from 1914 until 1919. During the war the Judge was chairman of the board in charge of the draft in this district. The two years on that board were the hardest in his life. The two others who served with him were Philip A. Hendrick of Arlington and Doctor Mead of Winchester.

"Even now it will not be possible for the judge to be idle for long. He is at present president of the Arlington Historical Society, a director of the Family Welfare Society of Boston, treasurer of the Channing Home for tubercular women, and vice-president for Massachusetts of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society."

In addition to the above, Judge Parmenter was a member of the Union Club of Boston, the Boston Athenæum, Appalachian Mountain Club, Curtis Club, Massachusetts Forest and Park Association, Club of Odd Volumes, and Colonial Society of Massachusetts. With M. V. Kellen he was joint author of the supplement to Kellen's Index Digest of the Massachusetts Reports. BASKETBALL TEAM MEETS WITH 4th STRAIGHT DEFEAT

Loses First to Medford and Then to Newton. Changes in Line-up to No Avail.

The Arlington High basketball team suffered its fourth straight defeat of the season, this time at the hands of Newton High, 25-15, at the Newton High School gym, Tuesday afternoon. Coach Lowder made a few changes in the line-up in an attempt to regain the winning stride, but to no avail. East Scores 21 to 16 Victory Over West

ARLINGTON ADVOCATE

The Junior High East basketball eam defeated the West quintet, 21-16, at the West gym last Friday. The game was hard and cleanly played, only in the last quarter did thé East gain a substantial lead. Charles Glennon, right forward for the East, was the high scorer. Quinn and Oliverio of the East played their usual reliable game, both offensively and defensively. Athanas, left forward for the West, featured for that team.

COMMUNITY FUND CAMPAIGN

When we consider that 13 hospitals, and their out-patient departments all but one of which are centrally located in Boston, bore a deficit last year estimated at $900,000 for the care of out-of-Boston people, we begin to realize how widespread is the service rendered by organizations seeking support through Greater Boston's 1937 Community Fund Campaign, January 25 to February 9.

This, however, is not the whole story of these Greater Boston agencies. Arlington is, without question, a safer, healthier and more wholesome place in which to live because of the agencies' work for the cure and prevention of disease, for the prevention of delinquency and dependency and destitution. This goes for all the 41 cities and towns in the Metropolitan area lying outside Boston proper. It must be remembered that crime and violence, infectious disease, delinquency and degeneracy do not considerately stick to their home town.

And, of course, men and women who live outside, but work inside, Boston, want that city to be as safe and decent as possible.

There is a well-organized and active group of Arlington citizens headed by Philip A. Hendrick, and determined to do their share from January 25 to February 9 toward realizing a much-needed oversubscription of the $4,100,000 goal of Greater Boston's Community Fund Campaign. We should give them a generous response when they ask old givers to increase their pledge and new givers to subscribe as generously as possible.

We have a theory that extreme adversity at the beginning means that much greater success at the end. As in cards, things do even up—believe it or not. One after another the principals in the forthcoming Friends of the Drama Gilbert & Sullivan production, "Pirates of Penzance," have been forced out of the cast by sickness, not to mention operations. But the show must go on, and take it from us, it will be a good show, in spite of everything. We still have Ed Center.

The latest casualty is Hugh Curry, who was to have sung the part of the Major General. Director Center tried frantically to get in touch with old faithful, Russ Hamlet Tuesday night, and finally got word to the Gilbertian while the latter was watching "There's Always Juliet," over in Wellesley. From then on the comedy was ruined for Russ; nevertheless, he has agreed to take the part.

A large group of people will be delighted to hear that Mr. Hamlet is taking the partpractically everyone in fact, everyone except Mrs. Hamlet.

David A. Wilcox, candidate to succeed himself as assessor to complete Earl A. Ryder's unexpired term, is one of those rare fellows who would rather do something for someone else than push his own interests. He has done much for the town in the past, and we feel that his services should be rewarded.

Why not put the snow plows back in the barn and not leave them rotting and rusting in the weather. Doesn't look as though we we're going to get any snow this year. The sumacs are actually beginning to leaf and the croci are coming up in places.

P. S.—We take it all back!

Street lighting is still far from adequate on Massachusetts avenue. Below the center the candle power has been increased, but above that point illumination is poor. There were six pedestrians killed by automobiles in Arlington during the past year—a disgraceful number. Better lighting might have saved at least half those lives. Chief Bullock of the police department would like very much to convert Massachusetts avenue to a Great White Way,—without the hot spots.

"Believing that he was firing at an intruder, Salvatore Lamonica, 80, of Turnpike st., North Andover, a retired widower, shot and killed his son Paul, 52, he told the police to-

The above appeared in one of the Boston papers Tuesday evening. We were rather puzzled by the description, "retired widower." We suppose that when a widower retires, he gets married again. But on the other hand, eighty years is a bit old for that. It's all very puzzling.

The Editor of the Arlington Advocate made the subjoined speech at a big Union Meeting, Sunday, Feb. 19, 1893, in our grand little old Town Hall:

The future of Arlington is secure. This is evidenced by what I see in through the audience, their bright eyes shining on me from just below the level of the shoulders of father and mother who have accompanied them here. A few years hence when the ballot is in the hands of the youth now before me, the saloon question will be settled once and for all time to come. The education of this later generation will bear that fruitage.

The saloon and rum shop is peculiarly the menace of the youth of any community and for this reason you should take interest. It is the children everywhere that are the heaviest sufferers, and so this is your fight as well as ours. For what the liquor traffic does to the children, for what the saloon and saloon-keeper inflict upon the youth of this fair land, it and they stand indicted at the bar of right public opinion. Because of its evil record it should be driven from the confines of every home. It has not one palliating or redeeming feature. I charge it with being a perfectly lawless thing, using all its ingenuity and money and wicked influence to evade restrictive laws. The rum traffic is wholly a consumer, lives wholly on the baser passions and can only increase at the expense of the youth of the land." Which seems to be a fairly accurate picture of the present situation with our youth and our land. Is there something we can do about it?

Tribute to Peter Gray In Cambridge Publication

The following tribute to the late Peter Gray of Arlington appeared in the current publication of the Cambridge Industrial Association:

"Pete Gray" is no more. His passing leaves a distinct void in the business life of Kendall Square. A throbbing personality, bubbling over with a warm, hearty welcome for everyone, his presence will be sadly missed. The vital enthusiasm which welled up in Peter Gray found an outlet in the under-privileged child work of the local Kiwanis Club. A father himself, the less fortunate child of the community immediately commanded his enthusiastic help and support. To aid in this work he undertook the management of bringing to Cambridge the United States Marine Band to give a concert to help raise funds for the underprivileged children of Cambridge. He was successful in this undertaking, which was largely due to his untiring work. How to measure the life work of Pete Gray is not hard. It is simply stated. He was a friend to every man. The many friends of Peter Gray extend to Mrs. Gray, her family, and to Mason H. Gray their deepest sympathy.

Mrs. Rugg Reads Essays Before Brown Alumnae

Before a gathering of Brown alumnae and friends at the home of Prof. and Mrs. Arthur E. Norton, 10 Prescott street, Cambridge, Sunday afternoon, Mrs. George B. C. Rugg of 44 Kensington road, read from her published essays.

Between readings Homer P. Whitford, organist of the First Congregational Church, Cambridge, gave several piano selections.

The reading was in the interests of the Boston Brown Alumnae scholarship fund, and a goodly sum was realized.

Mrs. Rugg is a regular contributor to the literary pages of the Christian Science Monitor.

Girl Scout Notes

Troop 1

Troop 1 met at Junior High West at four o'clock. A class was started on flag and anthem for the tenderfeet. About eight or ten first class girls went out for map-making by Miss Ann Crockett. The other girls planned what they needed for second class work. The meeting ended at five o'clock.

Most of the girls of our troop are tenderfoot girls, so we are starting on nature. We received a letter from a girl who is at the Reading Sanatorium in Wilmington. We gave her a year's subscription to the "American Girl" as a Christmas present. Each one of us is going to write her a letter.

---Constance Wilkshire.

Troop 12

On January 11 we had a small number of girls at our meeting because many of our members were attending a Hostess class. A Citizenship class starts on Tuesday with Mrs. MacGilvray as instructor. Miss Mary MacGilvray took charge of our troop while Captain MacGilvray was at the Hostess class. -Theresa Bergstrom.

This Terraplane captured the famous South Africa Golden Jublilee Road Race when it beat 41 other cars, including many European and American popular makes, recently. It was driven by two of South Africa's famous road racers, C. L. Engelbrecht (left), and F. R. H. Hopley (right).

The victory of an American car in the Nairobi-Rand race is commented upon somewhat wistfully, if not sadly, by South African newspapers. The following, taken from the Cape Argus of Capetown is indicative of the feeling stirred by the failure of British manufacturers to capture this event. The article, which is written under the head "46 Miles an Hour" follows: "Nothing for years has dealt such a shattering blow to the romantic tradition of a 'darkest Africa' as the Nairobi-Rand motor car race which ended last night. True the winners of this race down half a continent occasionally killed a leopard at 60 miles an hour, and in other ways the essential elements of romance were preserved in the race; but it remains an astonishing thing that men are now able to drive from Kenya to South Africa in less than two and a half days. Any driver who has ventured on a long country trip knows that it is exceedingly difficult to average 40 miles an hour over a stretch of 200 miles or so. The daring young men who have performed so well in this race covered 2800 miles at an average of 46. Dongas, leopards, giraffes, thunderstorms and other incidentals obviously meant little to them. The Africa of the fanciful

nevelist, the Africa of cannibals

gorillas, is not the Africa that these racers traversed so swiftly.

"This Nairobi-Rand road race is one of the "side-shows" of the Empire Exhibition. As such it may be pardoned a trifle of flamboyance. Nobody will maintain that it was necessary or that its organizers aimed to prove anything in particular; it was arranged like a Roman circus to please the crowd. Yet the race has done more than provide a topic of talk for diners out; it has emphasized the sure efficiency of the American product. For almost 20 years this country has been asking the British motor manufacturer to produce a car designed for South African conditions, a car with adequate clearance, a sturdy chassis and horsepower sufficient to conquer hills and maintain a high average speed. Some of the British factories have responded, and some of their cars (built as always with that craftsmanship which only Britain seems to achieve) have come near satisfying the demands of this exacting country. But one must recognize that American principles of motor car manufacture have enjoyed a triumph in this road race. Relatively, the road race to the Rand has been a far greater success than the much publicised air race, since a dozen of the 42 cars finished within six hours of the winner. In an international contest the British manufacturer has not achieved that success which would have proved a valuable advertisement in these days of intensive commercial competition.

The Empire Exhibition road race has rather unhappily exalted non-Empire products."

He thinks that if we all get together and join in supporting this new Chest and show that we can all pull together when it comes to a community effort, it will prove a fine thing for Arlington. And try to find anything wrong with his argument.

It isn't as though—just another minute, please, let's follow this thought a moment. It isn't as though we had a tremendously large sum of money to raise. We don't need any of this "give until it hurts" hue and cry in Arlington. We don't need to plaster the town with banners and posters and all that sort of thing. This Chest is going to be run in a friendly, neighborly way, with just enough publicity to let folks know about it, nection with the ball. At the end but with nothing smacking of ballyhoo. In her five years in Arlington she has found that the classes do stimulate business of private teachers. was sent or recommended by Mrs. Kidder. Miss Severance does agree that the Arlington system is unfair in that the teacher has an opportunity to come in personal contact with pupils who will later become private pupils. She believes that her reasonable rates, and her willingness to go into homes, are the reasons she has received more

Mrs. Palmer said, "The School Committee does not compel parents to send their children to Mrs. Kidder. It is the parents' privilege tosend them to private teachers, and surely they would not spend ten dollars a year if the children were not benefitted by the classes."

Attorney Albert W. Wunderly spoke as a representative of the children. He claimed, "If the School Committee has been negligent for nine years, it should be impeached today, but if it has been. negligent, 1000 other boards throughout the state have been similarly negligent." Mr. Dadmun, chairman of the School Committee, proposed taking a vote, but Miss Alice Grayce Lenk objected, saying it could be easily seen who had the majority, and added that the members of the association could have brought their friends, too, if they had cared to pack the meeting. She was immediately answered by a parent who stated that the people had come voluntarily in interest of the
